Ad 1: Current article/s:

We have finally found a publisher who will print Rosalie Bertell's book, including recent writings and an article by Clive Hamilton from Australia about Geo-engineering, at a very low price with all the bells and whistles. As part of the current article/s in the 4th Information-Letter we will therefore see the preface to the book of the author in German language, a preface by Vandana Shiva, member of the Council of the PMME and an introduction by Claudia von Werlhof.

We would especially like to thank Genevieve Vaughan, the Gerda Weiler-Foundation, Maria Mies of the council of PMME, and the Interdisciplinary Platform for Research „Politics-Religion-Arts“, University of Innsbruck, for their funds in support of the translation.

„Kriegswaffe Planet Erde“ –(Weapon of War: Planet Earth)

- Preface and Introduction –

Preface for the German Version of PLANET EARTH

by Rosalie Bertell PhD

There were two new shocking and horrendous military technologies introduced during World War II: the first has been in the forefront since its use by the U.S. against the Japanese people in 1945, namely, the Manhattan Project (the US, UK and Canadian collaborators) atomic bombs. The second was not very public during the war and was soon forgotten because of its later presentation as benign, exciting, and capturing the 'Buck Rogers' imagination of a future world where humans could fly through the air, and build rockets to search out the planets and travel to new galaxies! This was, of course the V-1 and V-2 rockets, first introduced near the end of the war by Germany and aimed at England and Europe.

[Text and pictures are from: <http://www.stelzriede.com/warstory.htm>]

The "V" stands for the German word "Vergeltungswaffe", which means "reprisal weapon". Due to a loophole in the Treaty of Versailles, which was signed at the end of World War I, Germans were restricted from producing artillery and other types of weapons. However, there were no restrictions on rocket research and production.

The V-1 looked like a small pilot-less plane, about four stories high. It was built in 1942 but went through many trials before it was operable.

During its three years of experimentation, with the German government pressuring the scientists to get it finished, the research suffered numerous problems with the guidance system, engine failures, and electronic problems. It was finally launched against Britain on 13 June 1944 from a long ramp. It carried a 1,900 pound warhead at about 350 miles per hour (550 km per hour) at an altitude of about 3000 feet (914 meters) and had a maximum range of about 250 miles (400 km). The V-1's were particularly terrifying because they would arrive at all times of the day and in all types of weather. It flew below most of the British surveillance systems, made a buzzing noise, very different from that of a Bomber, and when it reached its target it became silent, dropped to the ground and caused a tremendous explosion. Its speed and stealth made air raid warnings impossible. The people called them 'buzz bombs'. Until March of 1945, about 6,000 people were killed by V-1s throughout Europe and about 40,000 were injured. The US was able to capture and copy some V-1 bombs, and they produced about a 1,000. However they were superceded by the atomic bomb and never used by the Allies in battle.

The V-2 was the world's first ballistic missile. It was 46 feet (14 meters) tall, 5 feet 4 inches (1.6 meters) in diameter, and it was propelled by a liquid-fuel engine. The engine burned for about 60 seconds, lifting the rocket to a height of about 52 miles (84 km, or 276,000 ft). The engine would then shut off and the missile would fall to its target on a ballistic path determined by the pull of gravity. It had a maximum range of about 225 miles (362 km) and carried a 2,000 pound warhead, which was capable of destroying a large building. It was called a 'block buster'. It took about five minutes for the missile to travel its maximum range.

The V-2 Rocket had a more accurate guidance system and was able to radio its position back to Germany, achieve much greater accuracy than the V-1 rocket. However it cost about 20 times more than the V-1 and carried about the same size bomb. While the V-1 took almost an hour to fly 250 miles on its curved path, the V-2 covered the same distance in about 5 minutes. The V-2's were launched from mobile sites, including city streets!

The V-2 was first used in combat in an attack on London on September 7, 1944. From this time until March of 1945, more than 1,100 V-2's fell in southern England, most around London and Norwich, causing about 2,700 deaths and over twice that many injuries. Another 2,000 of the missiles were fired at targets on the European continent, primarily Antwerp, Belgium, which had been re-captured by the Allies and had become an important Allied port.

London was actually hit by 517 V-2's and 1,265 of the missiles hit Antwerp. At the height of their production, 700 V-2's per month were being built, most under very harsh conditions by slave laborers from concentration camps. A total of about 10,000 V-2's were made. The Germans were making plans to launch V-2's from submarines against the United States, but they were never successful, due to technical difficulties and the war's end.

The V-2's might have caused Britain to surrender to the Germans had the war not been quickly terminated with the invasion of Italy and Normandy, and the march on Germany!

In other words, this is the center of research and development for the next war!

This book is about the potential war which has gestated in the minds of the military planners for the last 60 years. It is no longer a nuclear war that is being planned. In fact I think that the nuclear issue has engaged the international community well beyond the time when it was abandoned by the military. What is now planned is weather/climate wars, wars involving earthquakes and volcanoes, floods and draught, hurricanes and monsoons. Let there be no mistake, the warriors are now able to tap earth's molten core for energy, interfere with the earth-sun, earth-moon and moon-sun feedback mechanisms. It is possible now to destroy the earth by crashing it into the sun, sending it spinning out to space, or even splitting it in two or burning it with a giant belch from the sun. This is no longer science fiction but the grim reality – and it lies in secrecy below the popular radar.

We are all children of the universe. Billions of years before we were born, the furnace of the stars made, in prolific abundance, the basic chemicals which are needed for all of life, and the supernovas gave up their lives to make all of the heavier chemicals and trace metal which our bodies need to properly function. More than four billion years ago our Planet Earth was formed. Not too close or too far from our planet's sun, so that our temperature was just right to support life. Our Planet formed a moon, to rule over the night, the water waves and life-giving cycles. Water covered our early planet forming a chemical soup in which long molecules including the proteins of life were formed of the elements made in the stars. Then the waters receded to the places of oceans and the dry land flourished into grasses, trees, flowers, insects, butterflies, birds, amphibians, animals of all sorts and humans. How grateful we must be for this magnificent gift of life and all we have needed to sustain it over the last hundreds of thousands of years! Yet, today it is under threats never felt before in its entire unfolding journey!

While the earth's human civic community has been trying to rid itself of nuclear weapons over the last 60 years, some economically developed nations have quietly moved into the realm of Geo-warfare. Geo-weaponry has recently been introduced to the public as a 'new' high tech way to mitigate the effects of global warming, much of the need resulting from military geo-experimentation, and it is being called "geo-engineering". Geo-engineering is defined as planetaryscale environmental engineering of our atmosphere: that is, manipulating our weather, our oceans, and our home planet itself. The methods that are being proposed in geo-engineering are already a reality without the public having participated in any debate, without even prior public notification, or democratic oversight. The proposed geo-engineering plans are based on a deep understanding of the earth system, learned through space and planet system exploration, which has been staggering in number and scope.

Why have these experiments not been known to the public and openly discussed, even in so called democracies, although the geo-experiments have been taking place since the end of World War II? This question was answered by a geo-engineer at the February 2010 meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS):

“...Studies show, however, that people make judgments based primarily on their values, belief systems, world views, and emotions. Facts play a much more minor role. This gap cannot be bridged by loading the public with facts, or trying to make the public more science literate...”

I have wanted my book known in Germany, where this technology had its birth and early development! I wanted Germans to see that their scientists could switch loyalty and their grand war plans could grow into a monster for waging war against all life on Planet Earth! This could easily happen again to any nation having the newer technologies of killing and the art of manipulating the forces of Nature. It would not lead this time to any dream of life without natural limits, or global dominance. Instead it would leave the planet without life or literature or music or poetry or sports or beauty – just desolation.

In early March Claudia von Werlhof contacted me and told me of the persecution she was suffering after a remark she made in a public interview. I will let Claudia tell her own story:

“It started with an interview for the well-known newspaper Der Standard in Vienna, in which several more or less well known people were interviewed about the economic crisis. I was chosen for an interview too. It appeared under the title: “Capitalism, a project of destruction”. I explained our approach, a Critical Theory of Patriarchy in a few sentences. There was not much space, of course. In the end I pointed to the international debate about Haiti and the rumors that the earthquake might have been produced artificially. After that I was accused of saying things that are not scientific and cannot be true. This accusation was made publicly by the director of the Institute of Political Science where I have been working for 21 years. He said that I damaged the institute by pointing to the international debate about the possible artificiality of the earthquake in Haiti.

“There were hundreds of comments published, 900 within a few days, and 20.000 in the Internet altogether! All were negative and extremely aggressive, shouting at me as a conspiracy theorist, mocking at me as a woman, as a social scientist, as a teacher etc. in effect: ‘she is mentally ill and should be removed from her position’. The extreme right party in Vienna (BZÖ) even formally accused me of being mentally ill in front of the public prosecutor in Innsbruck and demanded I be removed from the University.

“In the meantime I have gotten a lot of information from all over the world about these experiments, and especially also from biologist, chemist and environmentalist Dr. Rosalie Bertell who got the Right Livelihood Award for her work in 1986 and who wrote: Planet Earth. The Latest Weapon of War, the result of her lifelong research about the history of HAARP. In this book she states that artificial earthquakes are part of the new techniques of non-nuclear planetary mass destruction and a dangerous manipulation of the planet itself, as developed by the military. After I had asked her for more information about Haiti on the 22nd of March she wrote: ‘Dear Claudia, I am sorry for your trouble. It is true that several countries now have the technology to cause earthquakes. There was also what looked like a plasma streak in the sky over Haiti before the earthquake. However, these may have been unrelated, and if they were related we cannot be sure which country caused the quake. I have written about this and other new technologies in my book: Planet Earth: The Latest Weapon of War. It is available in all Universities in Canada and is used as a text book in some U.S. Universities. You might be able to get a copy in Europe. Otherwise I could send it to you.’”

Needless to say we became friends, and I sent Claudia a copy of my book prior to her “Documentation of the Campaign of the Media and the Institute of Political Science against Claudia Von Werlhof, University of Innsbruck” in April 2010, Innsbruck, Austria.

On Wednesday, 14 April 2010, Claudia wrote to tell me that the Rector of the University wrote a formal letter in which he stated that he stood behind her as a support in this controversy! She had already found a friend who was beginning to translate my book into German!

Part of Claudia’s statement in the Documentation touched me deeply:

“Together with Dr. Bertell we have to ask ourselves for instance how far the so called climate change is influenced by these [military] developments and tests. I, therefore, understand the “global Warming”, or more precisely now as GLOBAL WARNING“! The earthquake weapon represents only one example of the horrible arsenal of (also non-nuclear) technologies for mass extermination. There are several others which could be called weapons of natural disaster or “ecology“- or “energy“-weapons and they even surpass the Biological and Chemical weapons regarding their mass impact. In other words: WE are literally thrown into a “world war“ with and at the same time against the planet and all its present and future life – inside and outside of it – and at the same time we are kept in complete ignorance of this fact. To put it clearly: They are about to murder the Great Mother, the earth herself.”

Scientists rarely live to see the full development of their research. They do not see what doors they have opened and in what deadly effects they have participated. It should serve as a warning to all scientists, and especially to all of those who have dedicated their talent to the creation of weapons of death! Let them convert their talents to civilian works which enhance and protect life! We are clearly in a struggle over whether to live on and enjoy this beautiful earth, or to destroy it and create an artificial ‘man-made’ robotic world. If we choose the latter it will prove to be a false goal because we will have destroyed everything that was truly important!

It should also stand as a warning to Nations that war is no longer an option of international ‘diplomacy’. There is no dispute that cannot be settled by an unbiased international court.

One time when I was visiting Fiji, the Island Nation in the Pacific with the most ferocious warriors, I was told the story about how the Chief of Fiji surrendered to the British. This brave warrior handed his spear to the British and asked to be taught how to be governed by law before the Fijian Nation destroyed itself. The British occupiers accepted the challenge but continued to fear the Fijians, and they brought in people from India to serve both themselves and the Fijians.

We people of the world are now like the Fijians – people who recognize that war will lead to the demise of ourselves, our civilizations, and our nourishing planet Earth. We need to cooperate with the United Nations and the International Court, help them to grow in competency and learn to settle our differences through a court of law. We need to model our behavior on the Human Rights Covenants and the Earth Charter, and put away our weapons, rockets, atomic and hydrogen bombs, chemical and biological warfare agents where they can never be retrieved or released into our atmosphere, water or land! We need to destroy the HAARP and Woodpecker, and put Tesla science to enhance life and health rather than war and death.

We the people will give a new task to our Nations: namely, that of living harmoniously within international laws and standards, so this planet, our Mother Earth, may again flourish and the seeds of the future may be preserved.

This book lays forth everyone's task so that all may participate in the Great Work of Peace!

The Movement for the Rights of Mother Earth

Preface by Dr. Vandana Shiva

We are in the midst of an epoch-making contest – the contest between the rights of Mother Earth, and rights of corporations and militarized states.

This contest is between the laws of Gaia, and the laws of the market and warfare. It is a contest between wars against Planet Earth and peace with Earth.

There are planetary wars taking place with geo-engineering – creating artificial volcanoes, fertilizing the oceans with iron filings, putting reflectors in the sky to stop the sun from shining on the Earth, as if the sun was the problem, not man's violence against the earth, and the arrogant ignorance in dealing with it.

Rosalie Bertrell's book "Planet Earth" focuses on militarized assault on the planet's climate system. Yet this planetary war is being offered as a solution to climate change.

In 1997, Edward Teller co-authored a white paper "Prospects for Physics-based modulation of global change", where he advocated the large scale introduction of metal particulates into the upper atmosphere to apply an effective "sunscreen".

Rosalie Bertell gave us early warnings about this deepening war against the earth. I am so glad the German edition of her book is now being published. It is a wakeup call for us all. We must stop this war against the Earth. Together we must start making peace with the Earth by recognizing and repeating the Rights of Mother Earth.

The Pentagon is looking to breed immortal synthetic organisms with the goal of eliminating "the randomness of natural evolutionary advancement". What is being done with the climate is being done with the evolutionary code of the universe, with total indifference for the consequences.

As the 2009 Synthetic Biology Report states, the concern that humans might be overreaching when we create organisms that never before existed, can be a safely concern, but it also returns us to disagreements about what is our proper role in the natural world.

There is an intense scramble for the earth's resources and ownership of nature. Big oil, big pharma, big food, big seed companies are joining hands to appropriate biodiversity and biomass – the living carbon – to extend the age of fossil fuel and dead carbon. Corporations view the 75% biomass used by nature and local communities as “wasted”. They would like to appropriate the living wealth of the planet for making biofuels, chemicals, plastics. This will dispossess the poor of the very sources of their lives and livelihoods. The instruments for the new dispossession are technological tools of genetic engineering, synthetic biology and intellectual property rights.

Turning the living wealth of the planet into the property of corporations through patents is a recipe for deepening the poverty and ecological crisis. Biodiversity is our living commons – the basis of life and commons. We are only part of nature, not her masters and owners. Intellectual Property Rights on life forms, living resources and living processes is an ethical, ecological and economic perversion. We need to recognize the rights of Mother Earth and therefore the intrinsic value of all her species and living processes.

We need to recognize the sovereignty of diverse knowledge systems including traditional knowledge. And we need to reclaim our biological and intellectual commons for both ecological sustainability and economic justice.

Weapon of War: Planet Earth

Introduction

by Claudia von Werlhof

I am delighted to have Rosalie Bertell's book „Planet Earth. The Latest Weapon of War“ now available to us in German together with the different updates. The “Planetary Movement for Mother Earth” was founded in mid of 2010 and developed out of cognizance to this book, which has since served as its scientific foundation (0). The movement has financed its translation from English through funds and has undertaken a long search for a publisher. This was a piece of hard work with many setbacks. Many publishers declined the manuscript, categorizing the text as being „conspiracy theory“, others declined arguing that the context in which the book was to be published was too “feministic”. None of them obviously deemed the overwhelming and shocking facts important enough! Precisely these facts are the evidence proving the content of not being any kind of conspiracy theory!

However, finally the people of the German speaking world can read for themselves about what is being undertaken behind our backs, for decades already, with the aim of literally converting our „Mother Earth“ into nothing less than an enormous weapon of war! This weapon, still in its developmental stages, not only endangers life on earth, it actually even poses a threat to Earth itself. This was in any case the entirely unimaginable conclusion of the Canadian American scientist Dr. Rosalie Bertell (1929), a biologist, chemist, biometrician, environmental and health expert who has tirelessly spent her professional life working in theory and practice – i.e. as an expert for the UN – and as the president of the „International Institute of Concern for Public Health“, IICP, Toronto, which was founded by her. Having realized through her work that nuclear technologies pose a risk to the environment, even during standard operation, and therefore have the potential of mass destruction without a MCA having taken place, she began her work by getting to the bottom of the dangers posed by nuclear weapons and technologies. As a next step she dedicated herself to the global dangers that had emerged from post nuclear weapon systems and technologies and continue to endanger the globe to this day. She sees her mandate in warning and educating the public of these findings and calls for resolute involvement of civilian society.

She was awarded the Right Livelihood Award for her book „No Immediate Danger? Prognosis for a Radioactive Earth“ (1985) in 1986. This topic is absolutely up to date in regard to the ultimate MCA of Fukushima and its effects which have outweighed those of Chernobyl by far and haven't even manifested themselves fully, as they are totally inconceivable and unpredictable (1).

Her book “Planet Earth. The Latest Weapon of War” written in 2000 (London, The Women's Press), however, never became very well known. The London based publisher went out of business the same year and the book's distribution ended. It would have deserved another award for sure! For there has never been a comparable book written that has taken on the topic of the development of post nuclear war technology and technology of mass destruction since World War II - first in the East, later in the West - that has been as comprehensive. It would be highly appreciated were it to be released in other languages as well, a Japanese translation and publication already exists.

The author's motivation for her intense engagement in these topics is truly ethical. For her Planet Earth is a sensitive, wonderful and friendly cosmic being, unique in the universe, which has not yet been or is not being understood anymore by us or science. Unlike our indigenous people, who understood the earth differently and whose descendants still do. They view(ed) the earth and everything upon, under and around it as being vital and did not perceive themselves to be its masters. The view of the earth that emerged in the modern era, believing the earth and its beings to be „dead matter“ which can be taken possession of randomly and for whatever purpose, in fact, was and still is completely foreign to these indigenous people. In the meanwhile the earth is being maliciously damaged even before this kind of an insight re-emerges here in the north of the „modern world system“, as intended by alternative movements; nobody knows even rudimentarily what unforeseeable and possibly irreversible damage this has already caused and will furthermore. Bertell herself quotes observations concerning the damage of the internal as well as external magnetic field of the earth and of different layers of the atmosphere influencing the weather, further the true causes of the hole in the ozone layer and therefore the possible presence of life-threatening cosmic radiation on earth, a possible geomagnetic shift outside of its inherent rhythm - caused by artificial interference and impairment of the earth's magnetic field, and a decrease of strength of the Gulf Stream as a result of the deliberate thawing of the Arctic Zone (3).

Bertell's concluding sentences state the following: „I hope this book has given readers some inspiration as to how they might become involved in helping this peaceful planet evolve to its full potential. Despite years of abuse, it is still an amazing and beautiful creation. It deserves our best efforts. Enjoy it, love it, and save it!”

What else? We will have no choice anyhow! Or have we taken leave of our senses to an extent to which we will simply sit back and watch „how our planet is slowly being wrecked“, as she expresses herself?

Rosalie Bertell, who is internationally regarded as an eco-feminist due to her crystal clear commitment to „Mother Earth“, is a member of the Roman Catholic congregation “Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart” in Pennsylvania, USA. The congregation enables her to work independently and has always supported her. Thus, as opposed to mainstream scientists, she is not under pressure to serve the mechanistic modern conception of the world which promotes a ruthless „do-ability“ and an unconditional „domination over nature“ or „demise of nature“; and as opposed to the Church which actually does not hold anything against this world view (anymore), she is insistent on the world – in the large and small sense – being vital and on the fact that it must not be harmed under any circumstances.

I have known for years that Rosalie Bertell and her book by the title of Planet Earth exist. However, I actually encountered her and the book during my attempt to learn about what had really occurred in the case of the devastating earthquake in January 2010 in Haiti. I had heard from prominent voices, that an „artificially induced“ earthquake seemed to have taken place, and I was profoundly shocked at that prospect. When I gave an account about this possibility in an interview about the general „crisis“ to the daily newspaper “Der Standard” in February of 2010 in Vienna, hoping to contribute to the beginnings of an investigation, something entirely different happened. For weeks to come I was stalked by mainly Austrian media and labeled as a conspiracy theorist, an ignorant and an insane woman; the damage I had supposedly caused in public led to difficulties at work, the department of Political Science at the University of Innsbruck where I have been a full professor for Women's Studies and Political Science since 1988. In fact, during my absence sometime at the beginning of March even my apartment was searched with the objective of finding data media with information about Haiti; another fact supporting the hypothesis that something was not quite as it seemed.

By the end of it I understood that I would have to embark on this journey in search of the truth about Haiti myself and that was how I made contact with Ms. Bertell. She explained to me how there was no hard evidence in the case of Haiti, however, that she thought it indeed possible that this had been an artificially induced earthquake; she sent me her book. An eye opener for me and beyond that a feeling as if the quake was taking place within my own depths. Since I am not a natural scientist, what I read was completely new for me and moreover so absolutely outrageous that it felt quite unbearable. From what I read it follows that this really exists, these massive „Earthquake Technologies“ as stated in the UN Convention on the Prohibition of Military or Any Other Hostile Use of Environmental Modification Techniques of 1977 (ENMOD):

„... earthquakes and tsunamis, an upset in the ecological balance of a region, or change its weather patterns (clouds, precipitation, cyclones of various types, and tornadic storms), in the state of the ozone layer or ionosphere, in climate patterns, or in ocean currents” (5).

In this case the stakes are a lot higher than the less impactful measures taken by the petroleum industry, which I had heard of, and that had been in use for the detection of oil fields. Yes, there were obviously many more „Natural Disaster“– technologies, and they have not just emerged today, they have existed for decades! In the realm of conspiracy theory the UN is definitely inconspicuous! So since it has described these technologies 35 years ago it cannot have been phantasm – from earthquakes, over tsunamis to hurricanes, from weather changes causing flooding as well as dehydration and fires, from severe weather to the changes in the air and ocean currents – it’s all doable! Therefore the UN’s objective was to prevent the application of these technologies as weapons for hostile purposes through the convention; so they were obviously in use then already!

And so Rosalie Bertell states in her preface to the German edition of her book: „What is planned now are climate and weather wars, wars in which earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, flooding and drought periods, hurricanes and monsoon rains will play a role.“

Why did none of us know about this? Hadn’t weapons been used in the Vietnam War that could influence weather? Why have the peace movement and the critics of technology, who were very active until into the 90s, why have the new social movements, the green movement and eco-feminism generally not found a voice in this respect? The connection is certainly the belief we were talked into, namely that there would be no more wars after the end of socialism.

The ENMOD (Environmental Modification) - Convention means nothing less than that we have not been able to define for decades anymore which of the so called natural disasters were actually natural and which ones occur due to technological manipulation. Like it or not, today we need to take into consideration that any kind of disaster, including our so called climate change, is possibly created artificially, by the military, and therefore not solely caused by mankind in general as the CO2 hypothesis asserts! In fact, while the cause for the thawing of the Arctic region is allegedly due to CO2 emissions and none of the international climate conferences even mention a possible involvement of the military, Bertell quotes Lowell Ponte (3) who explains that the thawing of the Arctic region with the use of ELF waves (extremely low frequency) had been agreed upon in a secret meeting between the Soviets and the Americans in Vladivostok in 1974 already! Recently, the press has been reporting collaboration between Exxon Mobile and the Russians since the end of August 2011 with the purpose of accessing natural resources, especially crude oil, beneath the ice. Now it has become possible, thanks to the thawing out! Wouldn’t an ice free North West Passage in summer be a wonderful transportation route in order to avoid having to go through the Panama Canal and therefore justifying the war against mother earth for economic reasons?

According to Bertell the key to all these questions lies in the military. She has dared to take on this taboo topic which nearly nobody else has done, dedicating her life to it. She must have a keen sense for getting at information that has not been made public by the media, since practically nothing concerning the military ever goes public. Nevertheless, records exist, events have taken place and there are reports and comments; all this has been collected meticulously by her and is now being presented as a sober chronology of the development taking place over the last 50 years. Maybe, well probably, she has missed some of them, the most secret ones, and so she highlights the occurrences of which we are simply ignorant – about what happened, what the consequences possibly were or might be in future. However, her descriptions of actual cases prove that a new reality has begun to exist on earth and is going unnoticed by us: the wanton destruction in an all-encompassing manner, not even sparing the planet as a whole! Therefore this introduces a new form of war to the world, one that isn't declared, and cannot be proven until today, one that seems to have evolved to a permanent condition, one that affects the civilian population and nature, and whose motive can only be scrutinized by asking the question “Cui bono?” – Who does it benefit? (6).

How will the millions of victims of the accumulating natural disasters respond after learning that their suffering was probably utterly unnecessary?

Why does this literally designed planetary war exist? According to Bertell the answer is simple: Destruction is the task of a military institution. Viewed in this light the new technologies are nothing less than weapons. “The military never uses the same weapons it used in previous wars”, she says. And: “The military is ahead of others by 50 years!” So while the anti-nuclear movement is busy with its struggle against nuclear arsenals, the military has long since moved from nuclear weapons to “plasma weapons, weather wars and geo-engineering”.

At this point finally the question about the technologies used arises. What is actually happening? How can it be possible to trigger huge natural disasters? How is it possible to threaten the whole planet? How come no regular (natural) scientist can see what is going on or just dismisses it as not believable? Rosalie Bertell highlights the development: beginning with the nuclear tests undertaken in the upper atmosphere, followed by the attempts to influence the magnetic field and the weather of regions of the earth, up to the attempt to influence the electrically charged layers of the air, the so called ionosphere, or rather its “plasma”, an energetic aggregate state beyond solid, liquid or gaseous.

And this indeed is where we see a, for us, new technology and science being employed: the work of the ostracized, disowned Serbo-Croat Nicolas Tesla (1856 – 1943), ridiculed as being a nutcase. The whole foundation of the new technology of the East and later of the West is based on his work and experiments concerning electricity, electromagnetism and the artificial induction of electromagnetic waves. Tesla, who belonged to a new generation of scientists innovating a „new physics“ ranging from the theory of relativity to quantum theory, had begun to work differently than mainstream natural science which is still based on a 17th century mechanistic world view. He actually viewed the world in its reality as opposed to it being a mere model: namely as being in motion, in vital motion. Not only did he discover alternating current, on which our whole lifestyle builds, he also began to experiment with the intervention of this motion by its very own means and to increase it enormously through rhythmic escalation. The potential of these experiments for new weapons technology was first recognized by the Soviet military. Tesla, however, rejected any military use of his discoveries since he believed that these weapons would be disastrous enough to destroy the entire planet. In this respect his hope was that the knowledge about this destructive potential would deter any military from putting such weapons to use.

However, now they are being used even though we have no idea how far reaching this is already or might be, or if the scalar weapons described by Tesla (a further development of electromagnetic weapons) may be in action already in whatever form (7). Even though not verifiable, Bertell believes it to be probable.

There is only one thing we non-natural scientists must ask for: we are in need of research and publications in order to facilitate a general discussion on the topic, much as Bertell's motto: If the military is messing with the air, the water and the earth, then we must learn about that, for this concerns our basis of existence!

There is nothing less at risk than the militarization, privatization, and impairment or even the loss of mankind and the earth! The HAARP (High Active Auroral Research Program) facility in Alaska, which uses Tesla's findings and has been built in accordance to the so called „Woodpecker” in the Soviet Union has many more replicas all over the world, also in Europe (i.e. Eiskat in Tromsö, monitored by the German Max Planck Institute), and does nothing less than to expose us to these risks. Today we figure that there are 1-2 dozen of these facilities to be found around the globe. Viewing the official patents, like the US HAARP patents of the physicist Eastlund, is sufficient to get an impression of what could possibly be planned and beyond that, how it is being put to use continuously! These kinds of experiments cannot be produced in a laboratory. They can only exist as field trials and the earth itself is their guinea pig!

Besides the plasma weapons that function through electromagnetic radiation of the ionosphere, heating it up and making it bulge so the rays can be redirected to selected points on earth where they are capable of causing enormous destruction, as Tesla and Bertell point out, weapons exist with which weather wars can be launched.

It is assumed that besides the Russians, the Americans are very progressive in this field as the Air Force document of 1996 titled „Owning the Weather in 2025” demonstrates. The content of the document was certainly not intended to be a joke, and we are past half time. Can these experiments, and if yes then which ones (?), be held accountable for the accumulation of weather phenomena in the past years? Or are we already witnesses of attacks in an undeclared global war with natural disasters?

So that leaves the so called technology of geo-engineering as a new weapon of war. According to Bertell, the matter of concern is the measures that are being taken by the military and are holding the earth as a whole in their vice grip. Again, this is something known only to a minority; geo-engineering, as in “Solar Radiation Management”, is promoted as a promising measure to counteract climate change (8) when the actual motive is the utilization of it as “Geological Weapons” (Bertell). This scenario has been taken apart by the ethicist Clive Hamilton, an Australian colleague who speaks up in Bertell's book. And once again the UN has pointed the way with its Moratorium against geo-engineering in Nagoya, Japan 2010. It is of course nothing new that there is still no public discussion taking place, although the measures of the geo-engineers have been put in place long ago! (9)

Meanwhile one thing has become clear. All these facts cannot be discounted by simply labeling them as conspiracy theory. A public debate over the matter needs to begin at last! Precisely for this reason we have founded the “Planetary Movement for Mother Earth” which now counts around 650 members throughout the world. Apart from Rosalie Bertell, the world renowned physicist and laureate of the Right Livelihood Award, we have won the critical voice of genetic engineering, advocate for small peasants, physicist and eco-feminist Dr. Vandana Shiva from India and the internationally well-established advocate of the subsistence perspective as an alternative to capitalism and patriarchy, Prof. Dr. Maria Mies from Germany, as our “counselors”.

In our view the questions about why and how this insanity is actually taking place have not yet been answered. We can, however, offer the new paradigm of „Critical Theory of Patriarchy“ which we have developed in Innsbruck during the past 20 years, as a perspective (10); this is actually viewed by Rosalie Bertell as an appropriate framework for the German publication of her book. Based on the critical view on technologies of patriarchy as utopian projects of “creation out of destruction“ or respectively destruction out of so called creation, this approach could draw our attention to the true nexus.

Thus, after having dominated nature and especially micro-nature (nuclear, genetic, and nano technologies), the military and its scientists are attempting to control macro nature, the planet as a whole. This means that the intention is to transform it (the planet) into a kind of mega-machine which will “obey” their every command. And so the risk of the destruction of life on earth, yes, of the earth itself, is taken for this hybris, with full awareness in order to literally achieve the domination over the world and over a technologically transformed planet! They are therefore nothing more than evil nihilists, psychopaths, criminals, dark magicians and „alchemists“, military alchemists who believe that they are actually able to create „a new heaven and a new earth“ by „disassembling“ the old one and „reconstructing“ it as a new and “superior” formation. Is their aim to be a godlike biblical being and to make the apocalypse come true?

What kind of an awakening we are in for!

Ad 2: Concerning our Association

- We would like to say thank you for the many small and larger donations that continuously reach us! This way we could fund translations, publications and administrative work.
- We would like to thank Bertell's translator for his continuous efforts throughout this rather difficult task! We could not have found anyone better suited!
- 2. General meeting of the Association „Planetary Movement for Mother Earth“, 16.8.2011 in Innsbruck:

Re-election of the Board:

Chairlady Claudia von Werlhof, Substitute Chairlady: Ursula Scheiber, Secretary: Martin Haselwanter, Treasurer: Simone Wörer.

Activities report: (cf. 3. and 4.) Planning for 2012 (Activities, organization of events etc.) is in the process of being determined. Suggestions are welcome!

Finances and working contracts: The annual accounting for 2010 has been reviewed by the auditors and approved.

We are continuously gaining new members. There are now 637 of us!

Thanks for the many helpful references and the information of our consultant on matters regarding physics, Konrad Dörr from Germany.

We thank our friends at MatriaVal, Frankfurt, the matriarchal magazine, who have published our announcements and articles and have therefore been a very important voice of our movement!

Ad 3: Outreach work/ Activities since April 2011

1. Public presentation of the „Planetary Movement for Mother Earth“ in Austria by C. v. Werlhof at the occasion of the Bolivian Ambassador in Germany, Walter Prudencio Magne Valiz’s lecture: „La Madre Tierra en la Cosmovisión Andina y el Uso Ritual de la Hoja de Coca en las Comunidades Aymara“, in Innsbruck on April 6, 2011, in the fully occupied auditorium 3 at the SOWI, University of Innsbruck.
2. International day of Mother Earth, Berlin, 4/22/2011
Upon Bolivia’s proposal the UN enacted this anniversary in 2010. We observed this day together with the women of matriarchal studies and the matriarchal magazine MatriaVal from 11 a.m. onwards at the square in front of the Pergamon Museum. We had banners and public speeches were held at the Neptune Fountain in the afternoon by Krista Köpp-Blöda, MatriaVal, the Bolivian Ambassador Walter Magne, and Claudia von Werlhof of the PMME.
3. Interview C. v. Werlhof with Janie Rezner in English about the Critical Theory of Patriarchy and the PMME, to be found at: <http://www.radio4all.net/index.php/program/51153> (You can also find it at www.radio4all.net and then plug in my name, Janie Rezner, in the open box on upper right of page).
4. International Congress on Matriarchy “The Time is Ripe!” in St. Gallen, Switzerland, Tonhalle, May 12th to 15th 2011. We took part through our attendance and a talk: „The Planetary Movement for Mother Earth – why it exists and needs to exist!“ by C. v. Werlhof Sunday morning. (see publications)

5. The development of the „Critical Theory of Patriarchy“ and an introduction of PMME, Lecture C. v. Werlhof at the „Women’s discussion evening – Ladies Only“, Tuesday 6/7/2011 at 7 p.m. in the Frankfurt Club Voltaire, Kleine Hochstr. 5, Frankfurt a. M.
6. Contribution to Hiroshima Memorial Day, Vienna, August 2011: „Fukushima Memorial Day “. Text contribution through PMME-reference to the public reading from „The Hyper MCA of Fukushima“(p. 4, publ. In Widerspruch 60, Zürich 2011).
7. Retirement of von C. v. Werlhof as a Professor in the autumn of 2011, Farewell by the Faculty on June 27th. Farewell speech with an account of the Critical Theory of Patriarchy and the development of the PMME.
8. Lecture Werlhof Oct. 17th: „‘Mord(s)Energie’ (Murderous Engery). Nuclear Alchemy as a patriarchal technique of „Creation out of Destruction“, lecture with reference to the PMME within the framework of the lecture series „After me Health?!“ of the FHNW – Campus Windisch in Switzerland.
9. Book presentation Werlhof: „The Reversal. The Project of Patriarchy and the Gender Dilemma“, Promedia, Vienna, with a discussion about Bertell und the PMME, and Promedia-Editor Dr. Hannes Hofbauer on November 8th., 7 p.m., Amerlinghaus, 7. Bez., Stiftgasse 8, Vienna.
10. Lecture Werlhof about Bertell: „Weapon of War, Planet Earth“, Nov. 26th, 7 p.m. in Regen, Bayerischer Wald.

Ad 5: Other matters

- Geo-Engineering: Letting the cat out of the bag!

The 3rd Information-Letter reported about the UN moratorium against geo engineering in 2010, Nagoya Japan. 193 nations signed it, the USA was not among them. The point of this moratorium is to bring technologies that are capable of manipulating the planet and its weather under international surveillance. Until now these again recently discussed technologies that have been in operation on an experimental and secret basis, are in the hands of individual states and private companies and therefore being put to use and advanced on their own initiative – presumably to the damage and disadvantage of many and the conditions for life on Earth. However, nobody of those responsible seems to be bothered. Not enough that English scientists are willing to begin corresponding projects, in Germany the magazine „Political Ecology“ is not the only medium (ref. 3rd info letter) that belittles the dangers of geo engineering projects:

SZ Nr. 232, p. 24, 8./9.10.11. This text states that a new internet platform has been installed in order to „discuss“ climate change and the possibilities of influencing it through „engineering“: www.climate-engineering.eu (Kiel Earth Institute und Marsilius-Kolleg of the University of Heidelberg)

- Besides, the newsflash column about climate research (new column in the SZ) notes:
- www.iopscience.iop.org/1748-9326/6/3/134036 = warning about climate change
- and www.vaildaily.com/article/20111001/EDITS/110939988
- and www.awi.de = Ice thickness measurement in the Arctic region

I am aware that: The cat is being let out of the bag! However, this is not happening in a manner in which the obvious is directly stated. This discourse does not take place in the realm of so called conspiracy theory, it rather takes on scientific forms claiming to be relevant to the cause of a possible salvation from climate change, therefore taking on economic and technological forms, provided a reduction of CO2 cannot be achieved or standards cannot be agreed on politically. What continues to be suppressed however is that:

a) The main part of climate change is probably not being caused by civilian but through military activities, and

b) The origin of geo engineering is its development out of military post-nuclear technologies in East and West; this is what Rosalie Bertell has revealed - and the reason for us to found the PMME (!), and it is related to the facts that have been commented on by the UN in its 1977 ENMOD Convention!

It seems as though all of this should continue to remain un-evaluated while, at the same time, the new military technologies and the huge profits and power they promise are indirectly being advertised!

And so the Australian ethicist Clive Hamilton is deliberately given a voice in Bertell's book „ Weapon of War: Planet Earth“ through his essay on geo engineering.

However, the obscene advertisement of salvation through destruction is nothing new; it has been inherent historically and still is in present day nuclear technology!

- Fukushima, life on Earth and us!

Unfortunately our pessimistic analysis in the 3rd Information-Letter from April 2011 has been affirmed. Yes, the meltdown in 3 of the 4 stricken reactors took place just hours after the damage had occurred without the public having been informed. Meanwhile the so called “China Syndrome” which we had talked about is to be expected; this means the melting down continues beyond the containment vessel through the fundament of the structure and into the deeper layers of the soil, taking direction onto the ground water and the Pacific Ocean (Kaku, Dörr). Therefore further hydrogen explosions are to be expected (Dörr, GLOBAL 2000a). Until now more than 1.500 so called "after-shocks" have been registered in the region. Large quantities of radioactivity are still leaking into the environment; this concerns especially the most hazardous of all, Plutonium (Dörr). The air, water, soil and plants are being polluted. The consequences demand that the four additional Fukushima Daiichi reactors in 10 km distance of the stricken plants would need to be shut down instantly in order to avoid "a fast and painful death sentence" (Kaku). Of course this applies to the workers at the ruins of Fukushima Daiichi as well; they are obviously being „worn down“ under inhuman conditions (TV Interview Oct. 2011).

When typhoon „Roke“ reached Fukushima and the nuclear ruins on September 21, this undoubtedly led to a massive distribution of nuclear particles in the whole country and beyond. Civilians found themselves unprotected and exposed to radioactivity. Even though measurements in the surrounding of the reactors have shown 240 times higher limit values for Strontium, the tolerance level for children has been increased many times over (ZDF) in order to disregard the need for evacuation (GLOBAL 2000b). Disregarding the high levels of radiation prevalent in the vicinity of Fukushima (population of 300.000), all schools in the town have re-opened in September. An increase of radiation damage in the population has been observed which includes nose hemorrhage, bleeding of the gums, purple patches of the skin and swollen thyroid glands. Beyond that we expect to see long-term effects in millions of people ranging from cancer to disorders of the liver, the bones, and the brain (Chossudovsky, in gen. Bertell 1985). The people however, are left alone as the Japanese government acts as if there was no related problem. In fact, the government is actually considering a reduction of the radius of the evacuation area around the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear plants! (DNR) Apart from that, the Japanese Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transportation and Tourism (MLIT) has approved the use of radioactive sludge for cement to be used in construction (Tsushin)!

Kan, the Japanese prime minister, has had to resign and his place was taken by Noda, the finance minister. Out of 54 nuclear plants only 15 are actually in operation. Exiting nuclear energy and entering an age of renewable energy has not begun yet (Koda). To the contrary, TEPCO (the operating company) has received a 43 billion Euro bail out (!) from the government (Fell); TEPCO argues that since the 9.1 magnitude of the earthquake was unforeseeable, this was an act of nature beyond control (Hirose). Other than that it needs to be pointed out that since nuclear energy is “an accoutrement to the nuclear industry” (Chossudovsky) it doesn’t fall under the norm of “regular” civilian economic activity. This directly applies to the Plutonium MOX-reactor 3 in Fukushima. Therefore, in the wake of the disaster of Fukushima the demands of the IPPNW (International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War), laureates of the Right Livelihood Award, and of 80% of German population can only be upheld by confronting the military background of the nuclear industry. The International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) will in any case be determined to “save the reputation of nuclear energy” and has „downplayed the dangers related to nuclear energy“ in its Vienna conference in 2011 (Greenpeace), as it has also done after and since the ultimate MCA of Fukushima and Chernobyl!

Japanese civilian society has now partly organized itself against its own government and TEPCO. Demonstrations have taken place at 130 locations throughout Japan. Tens of thousands have demanded an exit out of nuclear energy and a complete shutdown. The long and well founded suppression of distrust towards nuclear energy, which was caused by the nuclear bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, is surfacing increasingly. Pregnant women and mothers are the most affected groups. They suffer wherever they can barely allow their children to leave the house (Hashimoto).

Except for measurements that have produced higher levels of contamination in the USA and Canada, there is little information about the probable contamination of the Asian neighboring countries, Hawaii and the whole of the northern hemisphere (Kaku). According to Dr. Michio Kaku, an expert on theoretical physics, due to the number of fuel rods in the reactors, the contamination is up to 50 times (!) higher of what we saw in Chernobyl; he believes that the radioactive material is initially being transported around the entire northern hemisphere by the rapidly moving jet stream in the upper atmosphere which passes right over north eastern Japan, subsequently reaching the southern hemisphere a year later. The deadliness will not decrease with time, if anything it will increase „during the first 250.000 years“ and accumulate! The meltdown of the core and the melting through the structure into the soil is just the beginning of the damage caused to humans, animals and plants on a daily basis. Each one of us on earth could be subjected to 429 deadly doses of radioactivity. The “Fukushima-Kill“ has already begun on a global level. We will witness a variety of mutations in the genetic code that will then be passed on through reproduction in humans, animals and plants. A large amount of stillbirths or non-viable forms of life will emerge and besides some grotesque physical deformations, we will witness the demise of human intelligence! From now onwards the genetic heritage of mankind will be deformed and weakened forever (Kaku).

In this context Rosalie Bertell talks about a beginning „Omnicide“, the „realistic danger of the extinction of human kind“, as she says (Bertell 1987, p. 20). The results of a new survey of the IPPNW about the long time effects on health caused by the Chernobyl disaster in 1986 show that 25 years later about 60 million people were affected and that since 1986 there have been 800.000 fewer births than expected. Significantly fewer girls have been born than boys (IPPNW). Once again this shows that, apart from very young life, the effects of nuclear contamination are more serious for females: and this is where ultimately life ends, it retreats from Earth.

By comparison: the quote of a CDU – Christian-conservative - politician in Germany on June 5th 2011: There should finally be an end to moralistic aspects. These have nothing to do with energy policy. And the former Chancellor of Germany of the same party, Helmut Kohl: „What has happened in Japan is terrible, but – in all its brutality – that too is life“. Life could after all not be enjoyed without risk (KLIMARETTER.INFO)!

According to historian Wolfgang Hingst irresponsibility and megalomania, is what categorizes „the class that believes it always has everything under its control“, as he states (Hingst).

The true causes for the earthquake, the tsunami and the nuclear disaster are still being discussed, although not in mainstream media and even less so in Japan (Koda). When taking history and geology in this region into consideration, the probability of a natural earthquake with a magnitude of 9.1 taking place is practically nonexistent. Meanwhile no one less than the NASA and subsequently the magazine „Technology Review“ of the renowned MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) have determined a buildup of heat in the layers of the air above the earthquake zone prior to the disaster. And so it seems that this observation was not due to the earthquake but was rather the cause of it! This, in turn, points to the application of the electromagnetic ionospheric heating technology á la HAARP or Woodpecker (Huff; v. Rétyi). In addition the tremendous number of aftershocks can be regarded as unnatural.

So are meanwhile nuclear and post nuclear technologies together with military means of mass destruction at work, reciprocating each other, while practically the entire public has no idea that it is not just witnessing „natural disasters“? Could we possibly already be amidst a “scenario of a 3rd World War“(Chossudovsky) that has not actually been „declared“, and as a matter of fact, is not declarable in any case?
