

Donne disarmanti / Disarming Women

Giovedì 22 novembre / Thursday 22. November

Ore 15-19 / 3 - 7 p.m.

Introduzione / Introduction – Bruna Bianchi

Sessione I – La prospettiva internazionale

Session I – The international perspective

Was the Women's Movement always international? – Jill Liddington, University of Leeds

Arms and the women: the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom on Disarmament, 1945-1975 – Catia Confortini, Wellesley College, Boston

Coffee break

'Saving Brown Women' from the bomb? Racism, colonialism and transnational solidarity in feminist anti-nuclear activism – Catherine Eschle, University of Strathclyde, Glasgow

Heirs of Rosalie Bertell? Her meaning for a women's movement in view of the new war against all life and Mother Earth herself today – Claudia Von Werlhof, University of Innsbruck

Dibattito / Questions and answers time

Venerdì 23 novembre / Friday 23. November

Ore 9-13.30 / 9 a.m. – 1.30 p.m.

Sessione II – Prospettive nazionali

Session II – National perspectives

La WILPF Italia contro il nucleare, Giovanna Pagani, Presidente onoraria di WILPF Italia

Prima che sia troppo tardi. La mobilitazione contro il nucleare dell'Unione Donne Italiane nel corso degli anni Cinquanta / Before it is too late. The Unione Donne Italiane's anti-nuclear mobilization in the 50s - Rachele Ledda, Università di Napoli L'Orientale

Coffee break

Built, voted against, and abandoned: 40 years after – Zwentendorf and women's activism in Austria – Dagmar Wernitzing, Ljubljana University

Anti-nuclear movements and the concepts of 'motherhood' in post-war Japan: a feminist perspective – Rin Odawara, Tokyo University of Foreign Studies

Dibattito / Questions and answers time